To the Farmers Around Qu'Appelle,

Please Read This and Don't Forget It When You Do :

I have just received a stock of the celebrated Clans Bread and Carving Knives. It is not necessary for me to say anything in regard to the quality of these goods, as they are the best in the market. There is no kitchen complete without a full set of these knives. The pleasure to any woman in using them is worth three times the price of them. By calling on me you can get Bread, Cake and Pastry Knives, one steel Pot-Scraper, solid Emery Sharpener—the five pieces for $1. You can also get a first class Wringing Machine, 11 inches, solid rubber rollers, for $3.50; No. 9 Copper Trunk tiles $1.25; No. 9 Wash Boiler, heavy tin, copper bottom, $1.75. I also have a full line of McClary's Famous Enameled Steelware. This is without exception the best goods in this line that has ever been offered to the public. I am prepared to sell it at the same good at rock-bottom prices. I have a full stock of Cream Cans on hand. When buying your cans see that they are wired top and bottom, latest improved steel top, mien, gauge, and heavy tin; last but not least, see that you get them for 75c. These are not factory made cans, they are my own make and I will guarantee every can. I keep no luckless shop; I do not dabble in every business and at the same time not keep a full stock of anything. I keep nothing but what belongs to my trade and I endeavor to keep a full stock of everything in that line and am prepared to sell the same at Winnipeg prices. It is to the farmers of this district that I look to for patronage, and what I say is this, if you can buy the same class of goods for less money than I offer them to you, then don't buy from me; if you cannot, give me a chance a show to make a living in your town. "Live and let live," that's my motto. Thanking you for all past favors, I remain your humble servant.

WILLIAM JOHNSTON,
Tinmith, Qu'Appelle Station.

The Mill Question.

To the Editor of The Progress.

Dear Sir—I think I voice the sentiments of the large majority of the ratepayers of this municipality when I say that I am heartily sick of the mill bonus. We have been paying our mill bonus tax for the last ten years and have been getting no benefit from it whatever, and when I went this town hall on Saturday last I was strongly opposed to any assistance being given by our municipal council to any new mill scheme. However, I got quite a lot of information on the question at that meeting. Other people besides the ratepayers of this municipality lost money. D. H.
McMillan & Bro. lost $200.00, and I have since heard that the judgment of the Bank of Ottawa for which this mill property was taken was for $8,800. That was several years ago, and in addition to the interest on this large sum, that the bank has been losing, they have been paying from $150 to $250 per year in taxes. Now, it was explained by Mr. Bulyea that the bank were willing to sell this property at a very low figure. They lose more than anyone connected with the figure mentioned I don't think there will be much trouble in them finding a purchaser. The bank alone in the mill and warehouse must be worth the amount asked, and in addition there is the engine, boiler and machinery.

Now, for one, I would much rather see some man with capital come in here and build this new mill himself, but we have been waiting for something for quite a few years and have not got it. I therefore look as if we will have to do the best we can for ourselves, and Mr. McKinnon has gone to a lot of trouble and has secured better terms than the bank has ever offered to anyone before. In 1894 they wanted $200.00 for this property.
The bank is a business proposition to us and says about as follows: "I believe in this scheme and am willing to put my money into it as far as it goes, but you people must help." Now, the question for us to look at is this: Do we want this mill? Would it be any benefit to us? As a farmer I say "Yes" to both questions. We cannot get our flour as cheap from the dealer as we can take our wheat to the mill and get it gristled, and we have to go to the nearest mill for that purpose. The last time I went to mill my expenses amounted to $4.75, and I am not much of a drinking man, either. Some of my neighbors have to go twice a year so it will cost them twice as much.
I say, therefore, that I would save quite a bit each year if we had a mill here.

Councillor Dale said at Saturday's meeting that there was no necessity for raising much for the old mill bonus this year, as they were a year ahead in the payments.
If then our council can help us get this mill without increasing our taxes this year, I think they should do so. He said that a rate of 1 1/2 mills would raise about $1,500.
Now, then, the question is, can I afford to pay my share of $15.00 this year if they decide to give it?
My half section is assessed at Cure" is a

Chase's discovery

cedents, but no

$1,200, and my share would therefore be $240. Yes, I can pay that amount, and so can every other farmer in the municipality, because I would save twice that much on every trip to the mill at Fort Qu'Appelle. We don't want to pay any interest, though, in the same way as we are doing with the old bonus. If the council help in any way, let it only be an amount that we can meet this year without much trouble. I hope each one of the farmers will think over this question, and I think that he will come to the same conclusion as I have, and that it is that we must have this mill.

Now, I would like to say a word to the people of Qu'Appelle as well.
Every dollar that a settler spends in going somewhere else to grist is money that should go to you in some way or other, and if you have a good mill you would get quite a few to come to your town who never came there at all now. You people must help too. I do not take much stock in the remarks of someone at the meeting, that the people of the town should say what help they are prepared to give first, but I do say that you have got to stir yourselves a little or your town will get left You must have some public spirit and look a little to the interests of the town as well as to your own interests. If you do not get a mill now it will be a long time before you have another chance. Let every man help as much as he can.
I think we will get our mill all right. Above all, I do hope there will be a large turnout at the meeting on Saturday, 3rd. Do not let one or two people do all the talking. If you have any opinions on the question that you would like to express, get up and express them and don't go away and growl about the meeting after it is over. We want this mill, and everyone ought to take enough interest in it to come to the meeting on Saturday.
JOHN PLOWMAN,
Qu'Appelle, March 30.

The second bachelors' ball was given in the Sataluta hotel, Sataluta, on Friday, 26th ult. Over one hundred and fifty invitations were issued and all were accepted. The ball was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting, and everything possible was done for the benefit of the dancers. The floor was also in splendid condition. About 12 o'clock all sat down to a sumptuous repast, which had been prepared by Mrs.
Wm. Wose in her very best style.
The orchestra, consisting of Messrs.
McGulbray and Hart, deserve special mention for the able manner in which they performed the musical part of the programme. Great credit is also due the committee for the way in which everything was conducted. Dancing was kept up with great vigor through the small hours of the morning, everyone pronouncing it to be the best ball of the season.

Mr. A. Jones, of Fat Ox ranch, McDonald Hills, arrived in town last week looking hale and hearty.
He joined the bachelors' club here last meeting and became one of our most active members. He proposed sending a number of our very thin members out to Fat Ox ranch to get some beef on their bones.
The first lot will go on the first rainy day.

The first meeting of the bachelors club was held on Monday evening, and a strong body of both boys and girls were present. The first meeting was held, Jack the Farmer occupying the chair. The following officers were elected: Jack the Farmer, G.M.; Billy the Kid, G.S.; T. D. the Miser, G.T.; Jack the Miser, G.G.; Jim-

A storm of thunder and lightning, Owing to a severe attack of inable to attend the Cockey club meeting last week, but it was decided to have no meeting this week, but to give a grand wind up to the time of the meetings is now taken up with preparations for the grand which promises to put a Dominion Shady Bostock started for the later, we heard his weary way back column at an angle of forty-five degrees to the ground, and his right hand to the region of his heart, breathless and a sickly whisper,

"Oh, cruel fate!"

section of Gladys Vernon with the dramatic company, and gave a description of her.

He told the officer where he would be found until the following morning, and then made his way to the hotel.

His friends greeted him with reproaches for his neglect of them, but good-naturedly, and soon the influence of friendly banter and jovial companionship dispelled the gloom and anxiety that oppressed Le Britta's mind.

For the time being, engaged in discussions of art and of conciliatory matters, he forgot Gladys Vernon. He was the enthusiastic artist once more, in love with his profession, and ably defending his theories in regard to the best lines followed in producing and perfecting pictures, as he talked with several fellow-members of his craft.

Quite a coterie had gathered about him in the lobby of the hotel, as he became engaged in an interesting argument regarding sensitive printing.

Then judges and critics, the counter-argument, and the evening drifted away, industriously and satisfactorily spent.

Le Britta had gone to his room, and was about to retire for the night, when there was a tap on the door.

He answered the summons, to find one of the servants of the hotel in waiting with a card.

"Richard Dunbar," he read, and he remembered that to be the name of the detective he had engaged.

Le Britta hurried below. He found the brisk, business-like officer awaiting him. "You have something to report?" queried Le Britta, anxiously.

"Yes," "You have found a clue?"

"We have accomplished what you wished. We have traced the girl."

"And found her?"

"No. Our labors end with learning how she left the city, and where she went."

"Yes, I understand that."

"Miss Haven, as you call her, after leaving the photographer's studio, returned to the Palace hotel."

"Where the dramatic company was staying?"

"Exactly."

"Where?"

"She took her satchel and hurried to the railroad depot."

"Which one?"

"The Central line. She purchased a ticket, and in a few concise words the detective developed the fact that she had secured a passage for the station nearest to Hawthorne villa."

Le Britta could scarcely credit the information. Gladys gone home; Gladys returned to Hawthorne villa!

Why, if that was her destination, a decision undoubtedly forced by Le Britta's recognition of her, had she fled from him?

With all her dread of Ralph Durand, why should she return to the place where he would at once enforce his power of guardianship?

"I cannot understand it," murmured Le Britta, as he paid the detective and walked out thoughtfully upon the street.

"There is some mystery here."

He tried to analyze the motives that would actuate Gladys in a resolve to abandon her dramatic career, and go back to face the fate from which she had so recently fled.

For over an hour he reflected, seriously over the case. He could not get it out of his mind.

More than once he told himself that he was exceeding his duty to himself and others in assuming so much anxiety and trouble for a comparative stranger, but his better nature discarded the suggestion, and he resolved to figure out the difficult problem, to find Gladys Vernon if possible.

Was it not probable that, fearing she would be followed by Le Britta, Gladys had purchased the ticket for home to throw him off the trail?

Scarcely. Her candid ingenuous nature was too guileless for that.

The case is certainly arriving critical climax," soliloquized Le Britta. "There must soon be some developments. The tramp in charge of Doctor Milton, the secret regarding the treasure in the ravine, these are formidable interests in the affair, but this girl, a refugee, homeless, frightened—oh, I wish could find her, to explain that friends are acting in her behalf, that her absence complicates the matter, and places us at a disadvantage. Merely that is the key to the enigma."

Le Britta started violently. Of a sudden a quick suggestion had come to his mind. In a flash he discerned the truth.

"Why?" he exclaimed, with a gasp of comprehension. "I never thought of it! Gladys Vernon has returned home—she said Ralph Durand's advertisement."

CHAPTER XXVI.—BLOCKED.

The next train on the Central left in two hours. Le Britta's decision had been quickly suggested and formed—he would go to Hawthorne villa.

There he was certain he would find Gladys Vernon. Thither he was positive the homeless orphan had returned.

When Gladys had fled from her home, he believed her lover, Sydney Vane, to be a fugitive. The advertisement inserted in the newspapers by Ralph Durand proved that he was in the power of that villainous plotter, at least that Durand knew of his whereabouts.

That carefully worked initial advertisement contained a terrible threat for the frantic fugitive. If she would save her lover's life, she had better return at once to Hawthorne villa, it suggested.

What more natural, therefore, than that she had so decided to do. Unequal to a strife where villainy held the whip-hand, Gladys had heart brokenly abandoned the contest. Before Le Britta could reach Hawthorne villa to intercept her, to warn her, she would have placed herself under the baleful power of the miscreant, Ralph Durand!

Le Britta took the train with an oppressed heart. Somehow, he felt that he was going to meet disaster, that, armed with some power not yet fully developed, Durand would drive him from the field completely at their next interview. He had started on a quest, however, and he would not abandon it, and he settled himself down in a seat to reflect, to formulate his plan of procedure if he found Gladys an inmate of the villa, when a hand slapped him familiarly on the shoulder.

"Hello," spoke a bluff, hearty voice, and its owner pressed into the seat without ceremony.

It proved to be one of the visitors to the convalescent, who, like Le Britta, was a photographer. They had met that day, and some moments were consumed in mutually explaining how neither intended remaining for the last day's exercises.

Le Britta did not feel much like talking, but his companion was not to be rebuffed. He was a photographer of the old school, and while he was forced to acknowledge Le Britta's superior genius for the present, he had manifested, attained, they never met but he forced a heated and lengthy discussion as to the merits and demerits of their respective systems.

"Well, Le Britta," spoke the man, as they drifted into their usual theme of discussion, "this photograph is an art, and this art is a science."

Mr. Ferguson, our druggist here, had filled the prescription and took the care to mark with a clearly printed label, "Poison, be careful." Mill Matters.

At the meeting called on Saturday last in the town hall to discuss mill matters, Mr. Bulyea, M.L.A., read the correspondence regarding the mill, and explained that the Bank of Ottawa had offered a most favorable option for the purchase of the old mill, the option to extend to June 1st. After considerable discussion, it was moved by Mr. Bulyea, and seconded by Mr. J. R. Brown: "That in the opinion of this meeting of the ratepayers of the municipality of South Qu'Appelle it is very important that the proposition made by the Bank of Ottawa for the sale of the property be accepted, and that steps should be taken for the formation of a joint stock company for the purchase of the same." Carried unanimously.

Owing to the rather slim attendance at this meeting, it was decided to hold an adjourned meeting on Saturday, April 3rd. As it is desirable that the mill should go on, ratepayers are urged to be present to suggest the best action to be taken in the matter.

What the Priests Say.

What is it that keeps the Irish people in these low social conditions? The saloon. Thither goes the money earned by the sweat of their brows. Thence do men issue, broken down in health and strength, to swell the list of idlers and paupers. Our disgrace and our misfortune in America is the number of Irish saloon-keepers. —Archbishop Ireland.

I impeach the liquor traffic of high crimes and misdemeanors. It is more mockery to ask us to put down drunkenness by moral and religious means. —Cardinal Manning.

The saloon is the recruiting office of the devil, of blasphemy and of infidelity. It is the duty, therefore, of all who love God and the church to oppose the influence of the saloon. —Father Burns.

We know that intemperance has wrought evil in the liberties of our country, and in the politics of our country. Oh, the meanness of our politics that will be led by the grasping element! —Father Elliott.

We who labor so hard to rid our mother country of landlords and landless misery ought not to become slaves of the rum lord and bow to the iniquity of intemperance. —Father Conaty.

Let no man say that he is safe enough, that he has no occasion to take the pledge. I have seen the stars of heaven fall and the cedars of Lebanon laid low. The pledge which I ask you and others to take does not enslave—it makes free. Temperance brings blessings in both hands—blessings for time and blessings for eternity. —Father Mathew.

We do not believe that the Church should leave the field entirely alone to the saloon-keeper to champion our laws. We believe that as long as the saloon dares, with brazen effrontery, to demoralize our politics that the Church, with uprightness, with a clean and serene countenance should enter the arena to purify it. —Father Cleary.

Any American citizen who says it is impossible for us to put down those evils, to enforce the laws that are upon the statute-books against the liquor interests, I would say to him he ought to abdicate. —Archbishop Elder.

Vernon Views.

(From our own correspondent.)

A successful party was held on Friday evening, March 19, at the residence of Mr. A. W. Langston among the many guests present were noticed Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Evans, Parson Matthews, W. Wass and E. Bird. After a splendid supper, which did credit to the hostess, dancing was enjoyed till daylight, when all departed to their homes, having thoroughly enjoyed themselves. This party was held to bid goodbye to Miss Clara Langston, who leaves shortly for Buffalo, N. Y. Miss Langston will be much missed by all her acquaintances.

Mr. A. J. Elve was up at Regina last week disposing of some fat cattle, for which he received good figures. He reports business very quiet there.

The Church of England fortnightly services, held at Vernon Hall farm, the residence of Mr. W. G. Cooper, have been well attended, averaging over forty. The next service is on Sunday, April 11th. All are invited.

Mr. C. H. Evans has bought a team of horses from Mr. A. Whiting. He intends to rush things as soon as spring opens up.

Messrs. F. G. Whiting and E. Bird were up to the capital on business last week.

Some of the farmers in this district are still busy putting up ice. Judging from the quantity of ice put up in this district this winter they intend making money this summer out of their cows.

Mr. W. G. Cooper was unfortunately enough to lose a valuable heifer a few days ago.

We notice the absence of Mr. T. Howden. We understand that he has gone to Scotland on business, but will return as soon as possible.
